2022 Director's Message

My first year as executive director has been both very challenging and very rewarding. As I learned the programs and the day to day operations, I discovered what I believe are the keys to the IOW Christian Outreach Program's success. First of all, the many dedicated volunteers that make the mission happen each day, rain or shine, by being there to help our clients. Second, our program leads that provide the continuity and the vision to make their programs succeed and grow to better help our community. Finally, the community itself that generously provides the assistance and donations that makes our programs possible. Without all these elements COP would not exist and with them we are able to make life better for many hundreds of families.

Some of the highlights from this year show that we are continuing in the right direction. We have created new partnerships and strengthened existing ones. We work closely with IOW Social Services and the IOW schools to provide emergency services funding and youth assistance in several different ways. Our Dental Assistance program is now working with Western Tidewater Free Clinic to increase services and the Food for Thought Program is partnering with the Smithfield Library to expand their Raise a Reader program. Several seasonal programs such as the Angel Tree gift program for Seniors, Smithfield Cares gift program for children and winter clothing distribution are totally supported by organizations in the community.

This coming year will also be challenging and will require new ways to better serve Isle of Wight County citizens in need. I look forward to leading the COP team and being there to help them work through problems and celebrate successes.

- Owen "Rick" Rowlands
